

THE Fentress Fair

The author uses several incidents at the Fentress Fair to foreshadow important events that may happen later in the novel. Find two incidents at the Fair that you think may foreshadow something important. Illustrate them and include a caption describing the event. 2 pts. each

Here Calpurnia

won a ribbon I think they will maybe hang it

on their house

Here Granddaddy was trying to buy a machine I think it will come back later

Choose one of the events above, and explain why you believe it will be important later in the novel. 3 points

I believe that the ribbon called 804 will be important later on in the novel because they will maybe hang it in their house or tell other people that she got a white ribbon.

Good complete sentence!

IF I WERE Callie

Callie is in a pickle. She isn't interested in the things that girls are supposed to be interested in. Her family (especially her mother) expects her to become a housewife, while she longs to be a scientist. Callie envisions a miserable life of pretending to be someone she is not. She doesn't seem to see a way out of it. What would you do if you were in Callie's shoes? Make a detailed plan.

If I were in Callie's shoes... 10 points

If I were in Callie's shoes I would tell my mother how I feel. I would tell her that I am interested in science and I don't want to become a housewife. I just want to do what I want to do. I want to become a scientist or telephone operator. I want to be like Granddaddy.

I really like this response. Quite a few other students also said they would talk to their mom about it. That seems very logical! :)
